This post may be recycled a bit, some of you may have read similar posts but since I've been on vacation for almost two weeks and pretty much out of the blogging loop, I'm going ahead with it because it is still pertinent, and still a big issue.

I don't know how else to describe Obama and his administration other than radical, tone-deaf, out of touch, with a blatant disregard of the law and constitution. Tyranny in other words.

We all know by now the DOJ led by the bigot Eric Holder filed suit against Arizona, and we all know the government is going to lose. It's a ridiculous, frivolous lawsuit that was put in to motion purely for political reasons. That should tell you something about this administration and this president that willingly places partisan politics ahead of the safety of its own citizens. They've lost the white vote, they've lost the independent vote, they've lost the Jewish vote, they've lost some Democrats, so now they are trying to buy the Hispanics, and the roughly 20 million illegal aliens that will show their appreciation for amnesty by voting Democrat. Meantime Americans are being killed, the drug cartels are running free and Phoenix is the kidnap capital of the civilized world. Screw our own people, I want absolute power! Though he didn't say those words, remember what I always say, "Actions speak louder than words."

So why is the Obama administration singling out Arizona? It's personal with the thin-skinned Obama. Jan Brewer made an ass out of Obama and now it's payback time. Contrary to what the deniers say, Barack Obama does indeed have an enemies list, just like Richard Nixon.

You see, Rhode Island has the same law, and their troopers are actively rounding up illegal aliens. Not a word about that in the propaganda laced lame stream media or the White House. That should tell a person that at least has a little common sense, that it's personal with Obama going after Brewer.

The Federal flunkies are claiming that Arizona is in violation of the Supremacy Clause. It is not. Arizona is not making immigration policy, it will merely enforce existing federal law, and Arizona's law is weaker than federal law. So, using the very same reasons why the federal government is going after Arizona, let's take a moment to discuss Sanctuary Cities.

Sanctuary cities. A safe haven for illegal aliens. Cities like San Francisco, Oakland, Minneapolis and St. Paul. They openly violate federal law and ignore the Supremacy Clause. They are in 100% violation of our immigration statutes under the U.S. criminal Code. Why aren't they brought up on charges or in a lawsuit?

Let's be perfectly clear in our understanding of this. The federal government goes after Arizona for enforcing the law and following the Supremacy Clause but turns a blind eye, gives a free pass, and does not go after Sanctuary Cities which are in violation of federal law and are ignoring the Supremacy Clause.

Looks like selective law enforcement to me. Gee, I was under the assumption that the United States was a nation of laws and there was such a thing as equal justice. Change.

Things that make you go, "hmm." Like I've said thousands of times, things are really upside down in Obamalalaland, don't you agree?
