

Liberal Disconnects

Written by Barthélemy Barbancourt
Sunday, 25 July 2010 11:17

---

It's fun to try and keep track of the numerous ways that liberals contradict themselves.

They hate Christians and love Muslims. They love choice for killing babies, but not for schools, health care or retirement investing. They love the government, but they fear the CIA, FBI, the military and the FDA.

Yep, you read that last part correctly, liberals don't trust the government to ensure safe food, but they think it will do a great job providing your health care.

Cartons of raw goat and cow milk and blocks of unpasteurized goat cheese were among the groceries seized in the June 30 raid by federal, state and local authorities &mdash; the latest salvo in the heated food fight over what people can put in their mouths.

So despite research outlining the dangers of consuming raw milk and other unprocessed foods, they're finding ways to circumnavigate federal, state and local laws that seek to control what they can serve at the dinner table. Such defiance, they said, comes from growing distrust of a food sector that has become more industrialized and consolidated — and whose products have been at the root of some of the country's deadliest food contamination cases.

So the modern liberal not only rejects the science of pasteurization, they don't trust the government to regulate something as simple as milk. These are the very same morons that tell us that the science of Man Made Global Warming is settled, but the 146 year old process of Pasteurization is still up for debate?

Liberalism may be a mental disorder because no sane person could think that all of these contradictions make sense.

Finally check out the liberal attitude towards the law. Liberals love laws, except when the law affects them. Then they prefer to ignore the law as laws are meant for the little people.

Liberal Disconnects

Written by Barthélemy Barbancourt
Sunday, 25 July 2010 11:17

---

One woman, digging into her green grocery bag for a pen, asked, "You guys got shut down last week?"

"Yes," Buttery said.

"That's nuts," the woman replied. "You're not going to stop, right?"

Buttery grinned. "Can I see your membership card?"

Cool, If they don't like the FDA's laws, I don't like tax laws and speed limits. Can I stop paying taxes and drive as fast as I want. And what about the laws against shooting liberals who beg for money on my front porch? I'd like to ignore that law too.