

The Inaugural BACON post!

Written by Badda

Friday, 29 May 2009 20:26 - Last Updated Saturday, 30 May 2009 09:47

Wake-n-Bacon!

I did try to run a search to see if anyone posted it at A-S 1.0, but it hiccoughed.. so I apologize if it's been posted before. Regardless, it's awesome, so what does it matter?

Description from the inventor:

"An alarm clock that wakes you up with the smell and sizzle of cooking bacon.

WHY: No one likes to wake up, especially by an alarm. This clock gently wakes you up with the mouthwatering aroma of bacon, just like waking up on a Sunday morning to the smell of Mom cooking breakfast. Unless you're Jewish.

The Inaugural BACON post!

Written by Badda

Friday, 29 May 2009 20:26 - Last Updated Saturday, 30 May 2009 09:47

HOW: A frozen strip of bacon is placed in Wake n' Bacon the night before. Because there is a 10 minute cooking time, the clock is set to go off 10 minutes before the desired waking time. Once the alarm goes off, the clock it sends a signal to a small speaker to generate the alarm sound. We hacked the clock so that the signal is re-routed by a microchip that in responds by sending a signal to a relay that throws the switch to power two halogen lamps that slow-cook the bacon in about 10 minutes."

Now, this is an alarm I could actually grow fond of, if it wasn't for the need to get up to throw another piece of bacon in it for the snooze to work!